Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO; March 4-Substantial price lesses were recorded in the local wheat market yesterday as another-wave of selling swept into the pt. It was inspired by weakness of foreign murkets, continued lack of export demand and the removal el the fixed price basis on which the poternment agencies have been purchasing rash wheat. A lower range of prices for coars grains and 130 was principally a reflection of the weakness in wheat. around 650@8.25; cutter grades Private estimates showing smaller 4,00@575; package mixed medium farm reserves than a year ago apsteers and beilers 11.25; sausage bulls peared to have little effect on sent:

Change Farm Policy

· Expectations that the farm bourwould support and attempt to slabilize prices at or above the arbitrary level at which they had been buying grain through the cooperatives was the general conclusion reached by the trade when the agen cles started buying futures last week Hence the local market bad found trade support in its recovery even in the face of pronounced weakness abroad on Saturday.

With such a situation extant, the withdrawal of the arbitrary purchasing price left the trade more or lusa at sea regarding the level at which stabilization would be attempted. Their there was a centeral selling movement because of the further decline in foreign prics. Support in the May delivery was strong at times and was credited to the government agencies with the brokers identified with this purchasing again active. The deferred months suffered more severe losses under persistent commission bouse selling and local pressure. Some of this offering appeared to be liquidation of wheat bought late last week on the forecast for a cold wave. While temperatures were severe over the belt, there was marked lack of damage reports. News Colorless Other neas was colorless. March deliveries were the depressing factor at Livernool and this was bearish here, taking the edge off recent reports that supplies were getting light abroad. Domestic visible stocks decreased only 1,894,000 bushels and there were no export sales reported. World figures showed consumption of import wheat continuing at about the same pace. While some bullish sentiment ove the light farm reserves of corn, the average of private estimates being 973,000,000 bushels compared with 1.-022,000,000 bushels a year ago, was reported, it was not sufficient to offset the depressing effect of declining wheat prices.' Then, too there was the fact that while reserves are light, con sumption apparently has been smaller based on the comparative sizes of the crops. Cash com was steady, but eastern demand was lighter with ship

Pay No Money, Now or Ever, For This Truss, Says Doctor-Inventor

Kansas City, Mo-In order to introduce a method that has helped thousands upon thousands of tuptored folks, Dr. Andrew Kaiser, wellknown Hernia Expert, offers to give a $3.50 truss to any runtured person. His newer method does away with leg strape, elastic belts and cruel binding springs. Many people, some with pery bad ruptures, have declared it brought them ouick improvement and freedom from the bacapering and discomfort of previous truss wearing. By its proper holding it gives Nature a chance to strengthen and build up the weakened tissues and muscles and thus has assisted in making many cures of reducible renture. The method is sent on 30 days' trial. If it does net help your rupture—return it, with no cost for the trial. The $5.50 truss is yours just for making the trial. Quaker Crackels . . . new invention of Quaker Oats Scientists. It's America's newest and most delicious cereal.

HERE'S a cereal that's really new. Not just "another cereal"-but something entirely different from anything you've ever tasted before. New in flavor, new in crispness . . . new in nour-it's called Quaker Crackels. It took Quaker Oats scientists 17 years of research to perfect this wonderful cereal. It cost close to $1,000,000.

How Crackels is made. What it is

For Quaker Crackels isn't just a single cereal. It's a blend of all that's best in three great American grains. It contains the vital energy of wheat. The rich nourishment of corn. The splendid proteins of oatmeal. Plus a zestful new blended flavor you acver tasted before in any cereal.

Best of all, Crackels has a unique, fresh-from-the-crisp in your cereal dish, in spite of milk and cream. The last spoonful as freshly crisp as the first. Crackels is America's crispest cereal because wheat, outs and com have been blended and crisped together in just the right scientific proportions.

Buy Crackels today for breakfast tomorrow. Surprise your family with something deliciously different for breakfast. All grocers have Crackels.

We couldn't understand why the Associated Press and the International News called their ace writers back from the London naval conference, but since the wets and drys have assembled their beavy artillery in Washington, we figure that we could guess the reason with one hand tied behind our back.

A bitter partisan might make something out of the fact that two members of the Democratic national committee are under fire at present, but only a bitter partitan. When it comes to square dealing or lack of it, position on one or the other side of the political tence makes little, it any, difference.

There is no ground for surprise over the disclosure that members of the senate have been trading oil and sugar votes. It's not impossible, it is not even improbable, that "great moral questions," as they are grandilequently referred to in the senate at times, have been determined in the same way.

An American Utterance.

The radio pronouncement of Secretary of the Navy Adams, Sunday, so far as we are able to recall, was the first wholly undiluted American utterance to come from one of our delegates since the opening of the London ave-power naval conference. It was distinctly heartening to Americans because of its frankness and vigor, and its atter freedom from subterfuge and concealment,

The navy asks the support of the American people in two things, the secretary said. I tions is familiar history. approval of the lowest naval limit that can be achieved in the conference consistent with the programs of other nations and with our own needs, and approval of the necessary expenditure to build the ships agreed upon by the various powers represented.

But in making this appeal, the secretary gave warning to the other powers that the United States intends to build up a navy adequate to its security as a nation, and that its building program depended upon its needs to assure this security in the light of the paval reduction programs of the other powers.

"The interests of peace and the interests of the navy are the same," Secretary Adams said. "I don't mean to say it isn't possible for a nation to build so large a navy as to breed the fears that provoke war. Also it is possible to have so feeble a navy as to provoke the indignities that likewise lead to war.

"There is between these two a point at which a nation's navy breeds screnity at home and no suspicion abroad. We are endeavoring to fix that point for five kinds of ships in five different navies. It is a complicated job. but we have made progress." And then he gave notice that the American delegates were ready to sit at the conference table until that point is reached or it becomes evident that it is beyond attainment.

Those who heard the secretary on the air or have since read reports of his address can hardly help but feel that had utterances of like vigor been made by our delegates earlier difficulty and less delay in molding five disbring about the result sought. As it is, at least some of the powers seem to feel that it is the privilege of others to give while they take, and the newspapers and nationals of parity between Britain and the United States. The utterance of Secretary Adams may serve to take some of this cocksuredness out of our British cousins. If his fellow-American delegates will stand by the secretary, in his demand for a navy which will protect our interests, it may dawn upon Britain that soviet Russia's farm lands, possibly figuring naval parity is desirable, for there is always that arousing a great number of peasants at the possibility that, in the event of the one time is accompanied by too great risk. failure of the conference, we might feel that "Who knows" Considering what they have

Rubber tire manufacturing inreased in January but remained beow the rate of a year ago. Most of the decrease was caused by lower automobile output but an important actor which has grown rapidly since 1924 has been the improvement in the durability of the product. Shoe Factories Increase

Shoe factories in southern Ohia made a four per cent increase in lanuary over December but were 19 er cent below January 1929. Cautions buying has been the out standing trait in the clothing bush ness and factories reported volumes of output slightly below normal.

Slightly improved January conditions were noted in the manufacture ing of auto parts and accessories china and pattery and plate glass There were slight decreases in brief and tile, metal containers, paint and varnish, stoves, watches and jewelry Commodity prices, including wheat clined during the past month, possibly affecting farmer purchasing power.

ACTION DELAYED ON FARM BOARD PROBE

Senate Committee Proposes Preliminary Inquiry About Nye Resolution

By the Associated Press WASHINGTON, March 4—At the? request of Secretary Hyde, the senate: agriculture committee today deferred action on a resolution by Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, calling for investigation of Federal Farm board activities.

Chairman McNary said Secretary Hyde and Chairman Legge of the board probably would be questioned before the committee acted.

The resolution proposed inquiry "whether the Federal Form board has been fairly interpreting the agricultural marketing act and carrying out its purposes," and "whether the socalled grain trade of America bas conspired to destroy the purpose and effectiveness of the act and to embarrass the farm board."

McNary declined to comment the attitude of the committee, declaring that they unanimously concurred in the suggestion of Agriculture Sec-"in view of the delicate eituntion throughout the world."

The committee chairman talked with Secretary Hyde shortly before the committee met.

The clerk stared at him; what bazy recognition might have passed through his head Kellogg did not know, but the man scrawled a few cabalistic words on a pink pad, tore off the uppermost written slip, and handed it to a boy. "Take 'm t' see Mist' Fitzgerold." he commanded. "An' come right back when you're done."

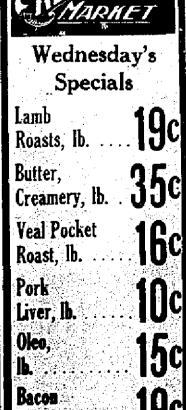

John Andrew had hoped that he might be taken to the sound stage engineering room, where he perhaps would not only be able to talk with the friendly red headed engineer, but also have an excuse to see Aune. However, the office into which he was shown was apparently that of some one fairly high in the organization of Consolidated, for it contained a huge desk of polished wood, padded chairs. and the usual trappings of executive-

I pretended to stumble as I reached the ground, and catching his that lunch of Katie's." trut gave him an old-time signal that had caught his warning. The next instant he had gone to the other side to help Lillian down. Mary had jumped lightly to the ground almost before the car had stopped, and I was thunkful that she was beside me, runninging in the touneau for her bug, because her action screened me in the furtive scruting I was giving the man Mr. Underwood had pointed out.

He was a man beavity built, with rown bair streaked with gray showing beneath his cloth cap. An uister, seavy but distinctly not new covered him, but as he alighted from the car. n look at his shoes, with a quick sum-ming up of his way of standing, and his method of using his eyes in looking at his surroundings elicked him at once into a certain compariment of my mental file. "Private detecive" was written all over him, and I knew what Harry Underwood wished of me. He did not need my confirmation of what his own keen perceptions and experience must have recognized at once, but he did wish me to impress upon my memory which he is pleased to call "uncanny," every detail of the appearance of both the man and the ear he was driving...

With a fussy pretense of rearranging the bluch box, which we had not as yet touched. I kept Mary with me as a smoke acreen while I stenciled the man's photograph upon my mem-ory. Harry had taken Lillian directly to the door of the hotel, and by the time I had completed my mental cataloguing of the man opposite, Purnetl. snave and smiling as ever, appeared from the door of the hotel.

Purnell on Guard

"Good alternoon, Mrs. Graham, and Miss Harrison," he said with the how which only Purnell can achieve. "It surely is a great pleasure to see you back again. But Mr. Underwood says you are only to be here a few minutes. He told me to lock the car and keep an eye on it, and neked if you two Indies would not come directly unstairs to his suite.

"We will be there directly," I said. I don't think we'll need our bags, do you, Mary " Dicky's niece closed the lock of her grin. "I've fished out a couple of extra bankies, and I'm ready to face the world. Come along, Auntie

I lingered only for a low-toned word with Purnell.

"Please, don't take your eyes from the car," I adjured blm. "Mr. wood has some reason for thinking someone may try to meddie with it." "Yes'm, that's what he said," Pur-nell replied, "and the manager said I wasn't to stir from here till Mr.

Underwood came out. Then we need feel no anxiety." told him, and the man grinned widely as I turned and walked swiftly toward the door of the hotel, with Mary close beside me.

Lillian's Dilemma

We found Lillion sitting in an arm chair by the window, with one warr eye upon her hig husband as he dashed in and out of her bedroom door, avidently trying to pack a bag for ber. I took my cue from an appealing glauce she sent me and, crossing to Mr. Underwood, took a silver bair-
